

Circle Green Healing Arts Code of Ethics

In addition to their own high standards of personal and professional integrity, Circle Green students, practitioners and teachers pledge to uphold the guidelines of the Circle Green Healing Arts Code of Ethics when practicing the art of natural healing.

When in the role of healer I shall, to the best of my ability:

- Honor and acknowledge others as a reflection of myself and reside in a place of gratitude when asked to fulfill the role of healer for another sentient being.
- Create a calm, comforting place in which to practice, one that is safe both physically and emotionally.
- Obtain the consent of a parent or guardian when dealing with a minor or someone unable to give legal consent of his or her own.
- Remain sober, present and focused during healing time with others and refrain from off-topic subjects, sexual comments and discussion of negative references.
- Describe procedures and techniques in detail before an activity begins by informing all parties of how and when any physical interaction will occur.
- Respect the personal space of others by avoiding sensitive areas of the body and engaging only in touch and talk that is consensual.
- Be worthy of trust by keeping all personal information and data shared during healing sessions secure and confidential.
- Offer only my presence and abilities to others and encourage them to seek the help of other skilled healthcare professionals for medical or psychological conditions requiring medications and clinical attention beyond my scope of training.
- Be truthful and forthright in the presentation of information given to others about my capabilities, credentials and the details and cost of my offerings.
- Help unite people with needed resources by sharing my knowledge with individuals and the greater community.
- Trust in the unfolding wisdom of my soul and continue whole-heartedly on the lifelong path of love, light, laughter and learning with a positive mental outlook.
